DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 1 is objected to because of the following informalities: "has" in line 5 should be replaced with --have--.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Takeda (USP 6,292,851).

Takeda teaches a semiconductor integrated circuit [6, FIG. 1] comprising:

a nonvolatile memory [30, FIG. 2] to store address information [address conversion table: col. 5, lines 22-24] indicating a relationship between an address of a first memory space [MEMORY ADDRESS SPACE, FIG. 10] and an address of a second memory space [PHYSICAL ADDRESS SPACE, FIG. 10];

a plurality of functional modules [LSI ALARM A, LSI ALARM B, LSI ALARM C, FIG. 10] each having an address in the second memory space [FIG. 10; col. 6, lines 52-60]; and a bus control circuit [16, FIG. 2],

wherein the bus control circuit receives a first address in the first memory space and translates the first address into a second address in the second memory space using the address information [col. 5, line 62-col. 6, line 5] and access is made to a functional module having the second address among the plurality of functional modules [col. 6, line 5-9].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takeda.

Takeda teaches the address information being changed in the nonvolatile memory (hence stored in the nonvolatile memory) when the physical addresses of the functional modules are changed, e.g. when engineering changes are made to the semiconductor integrated circuit [col. 6, line 67-col. 7, line 2; col. 6, lines 60-62], and the nonvolatile memory being modifiable by on-board reprogramming [col. 7, lines 32-34].

Since a probing test is normally conducted in association with an engineering change, and since the nonvolatile memory is modifiable by on-board reprogramming, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to store the address information in the nonvolatile memory (by on-board reprogramming) when a probing test (associated with an engineering change) is conducted is on the semiconductor integrated circuit in order to reflect a proper relationship between the address of the first memory space and the address of the second memory space, and in order to allow Takeda's system to function properly.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 2, 4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
